Creating a Legacy through Gifts of Property
Does Garrison Forest School accept gifts of property?
Garrison Forest School accepts a wide variety of gifts including personal and real property. Personal property includes gifts of objects such as art, books, objects associated with the history of the school, horses, and more. Real property refers to real estate.

What factors does Garrison Forest consider with respect to gifts of property?
When considering gifts of either real or personal property, Garrison Forest evaluates how the gift will enhance its mission and how the gift will be maintained. We do not accept gifts that cannot be used to further the school’s purpose or that cannot be properly maintained by our staff.

If I want to consider making a gift of personal property, how should I begin?
Each of gift of personal property is unique; therefore, we recommend reaching out to have a conversation about the property you are interested in donating. Unfortunately, we are not able to accept all personal or real property, so it is very important that we begin the conversation with you as early as possible.

Are there advantages to giving gifts of property?
Aside from supporting the educational mission of Garrison Forest School, your gift could provide you with a favorable tax deduction. We recommend that you speak with your tax preparer or financial advisor about the tax benefits you may receive from making a gift of property to Garrison Forest School.

Why is this a good way to give?
Gifts of personal or real property make wonderful
• Outrights gifts;
• Partial gifts;
• Gifts through a will or trust; and
• Gifts that can be used to fund a trust.
Please ask us if you would like to know more!